INTRODUCTION

This year has seen a rich array of research, consultation, and workshop by affiliates of the Center, both in Hawaii and internationally. Here are some highlights. More information is below.

Locally, a major activity of four affiliates this year--Jim Dator, John Sweeney, Aubrey Yee, and Aaron Rosa—has been research enabled by a “Technology, Innovation, Society” grant from the UH Foundation to study if and how changing communications technologies have changed power relations in the past and might do so in the futures. Four publications, presentations at three different international conferences, and participation by local and international guests in a game based on the research have resulted so far. A book based on the research, tentatively titled Mutative Media: Communication technologies and social change in the past, present, and futures, is being finalized for publication by Springer Press.

In October, Scott Yim participated in the 2013 Hawaii Aerospace Summit held in the State Capitol. The event was hosted by The Hawaii Office of Aerospace Development and the Pacific International Space Center for Exploration Systems (PISCES).

From November 2012, Jim Dator cooperated with a multidisciplinary team (including faculty members from public health, social work, sociology, public administration, public policy, and urban regional planning) to develop a proposal to the National Science Foundation aimed at using research based on lessons learned from the experiences of recent migrants from Micronesia on the delivery of health and educational services in Hawaii in order to prepare anticipatory policy for possible future environmental refugees to Hawaii at elsewhere. A proposal for that research project was sent to the National Science Foundation in January 2013, but was not funded.

Members of the Center conducted futures workshops for various community groups, and participated in media discussions concerning the futures, as listed below.

Nationally,

The Center engaged in cooperative research projects on the futures of governance with the Institute for the Future, Menlo Park, California, and with the Institute for Alternative Futures in Alexandria, Virginia.

Ongoing participation in The Future of Wildland Fire Management in a World of Rapid Change and Great Uncertainty, sponsored by the United States Forest Service.

Internationally

In April, John Sweeney and Aubrey Yee collaborated with the East-West Center to host the first-ever futures-focused workshop in Myanmar. The Myanmar Futures Exchange offered a series of workshop sessions on what drivers and inhibitors might be most significant for the country's economic development by 2020.

Our ongoing work with Korea continued to move forward with our third three-week workshop during the summer of 2013 for Korean Journalists, sponsored by the Samsung Press Foundation. A fourth workshop will be conducted during the summer of 2014.

The Center continues to work closely with various Korean research institutes, especially the Korea Advanced Institute for Science and Technology (KAIST), participating in March in inaugurating the new Department of Futures Strategy in the School of Quantum and Brain Engineering, Korea Advanced Institute for Science and Technology, Daejeon, Korea.

Jim Dator was presented the “Grand Award for Future Strategy”, by the Korean Advanced Institute of Science and Technology, Daejeon, Korea. The plaque with the award said, “This award is presented for your great contributions in solving the problems of global humanity, and training talented individuals through a leading role in futures studies,” April 12, 2013

Ten affiliates of the Center attended and presented papers at the WFSF World Conference in Bucharest, Romania in June. They were Ilhan Bae, Tuti Baker, Jim Dator, William Kramer, Seongwon Park, BumChul Shim, John Sweeney, Jenifer Winter, Aubrey Yee. Jim Dator was elected to the Board of the Federation.

In cooperation with the School of International Futures, located in the UK, we are developing a series of futures workshops for government officials. The first is expected to be held in Hawaii in April 2014

As an Affiliate Campus of the International Space University (ISU) in Strasbourg, France, we continued our teaching and research on many aspects of Space and Society, described below.

With funds obtained from our research and training activities we were able to help support nine graduate students and provide additional funding to six UHM faculty members.

BACKGROUND OF THE CENTER

The HRCFS was established by the Hawai‘i State Legislature in 1971 to collect and disseminate information about futures studies and to conduct futures research for public and private groups within the State, the region, and throughout the world (Chapter 304A-3253).

Locally, the HRCFS is administered by the UHM Department of Political Science. The HRCFS thus works closely with the Alternative Futures Graduate Option in the Department. The Alternative Futures Option, created in 1977, has produced scores of women and men who have gone on to become successful professional futures consultants in many fields, locally, nationally, and worldwide. The Alternative Futures Option was listed as Number 17 among the "100 Contributions" listed in celebration of the 100th Anniversary of the University of Hawai'i (Malamalama, Vol. 33, No. 2, May 2008, p. 4).

One component of the Alternative Futures Option is a paid internship that many students experience with the Institute for Alternative Futures (IAF), in Alexandria, Virginia (one of the oldest and most respected futures consulting firms in the world), with the HRCFS itself, or with some other futures consulting firm, such as the Institute for the Future in Menlo Park, California. Heather Frey interned at IAF in 2010, Scott Yim in 2011, and Bum-Chul Shim in 2012. Brian Gordon is expected to intern in 2014.

This year, as always, we consulted with several local groups in government, business and the nonprofit sector about various futures-oriented issues.

The HRCFS also cooperates with the Program in Public Administration, the School of Architecture, the College of Education, and other University units as well as the Asian-Pacific Leadership Program of the East-West Center on applied futures-oriented projects in Hawai'i and throughout the Asia-Pacific region.

Nationally, the HRCFS is a major futures resource. The HRCFS was responsible, with IAF, for the concept and development of "judicial foresight"--incorporating futures studies into judicial administrative decision-making. This began with work done by the HRCFS with Chief Justice William Richardson and Court Administrator Lester Cingcade of the Hawai'i State Judiciary from the 1970s onward. The State Justice Institute, a U.S. federal agency for state judiciaries, made the category "Futures and the Courts" one of its major funding categories during the decade of the 1990s specifically because of work done with and through the HRCFS and the IAF. Consequently, the HRCFS has engaged in judicial foresight activities indirectly with all, and directly with ten, other U.S. state judiciaries, as well as with the U. S. federal judiciary, many national and state bar associations, and with several foreign judiciaries and law-related entities, not only in the Asia-Pacific but also in The Hague. In addition, the HRCFS consults with many other governmental units, universities, businesses, religious organizations, and nonprofit entities throughout North America.

Globally, the World Futures Studies Federation (WFSF), the premier world organization of groups and individuals conducting futures research at a professional level, chose the Center to house the WFSF Secretariat during the 1980s and early 90s, and awarded the HRCFS its highest honor for excellence in futures research in 1995. The Center continues to work closely with the WFSF and with the Association of Professional Futurists.

The Center has been an Affiliate Campus of the International Space University (ISU) of Strasbourg, France since 1996. As such, UH faculty and students participate in the Masters in Space Studies (MSS) program at the main campus in Strasbourg and the nine-week Space Session Program (SSP) that is held in different locations around the world (most recently, the University of West Australia, Adelaide, the University of Bremen, Germany; Federico Santa Maria Technical University, Valparaiso, Chile; Suranaree University of Technology, Nakhon Ratchasima, Thailand; Beihang University, Beijing, China; Universitat Politècnica de Catalunya, Barcelona; NASA Ames, California; and Graz University of Technology, Graz, Austria; and Florida Technical University and Kennedy Space Center, Melbourne, Florida. The SSP for 2014 will be held in Montreal, Quebec, Canada. Discussions continue about the possibility of an SSP being held in Hawaii in the near future.

Selected ISU MSS students have come to the Mānoa campus for their Internship Program. University of Hawai‘i students also enjoy special privileges regarding admission and substantially reduced tuition at ISU, and several UH graduate have received a MSc in Space Studies at ISU under this arrangement. Scott Yim, an affiliate of the Center and MA graduate in Alternative Futures in the Department of Political Science, received the Master of Space Studies from ISU in 2013. HRCFS and ISU also cooperate in various research, training and outreach projects, most recently in researching and writing a definitive book on space in all its human and scientific aspects titled, The Farthest Shore: A 21st Century Guide to Space (Apogee Books, 2010). As an Affiliate Campus of the International Space University in Strasbourg, France, we continued our teaching and research on many aspects of Space and Society/Space Humanities.

By compiling lectures given at ISU over the years, and supplemental research, Jim Dator published a book on Social Foundations of Human Space Exploration. (New York: Springer Briefs in Space Development, 2012) as part of a series on The Fundamentals of Space, edited by Joe Pelton. Other volumes in the series cover astrobiology, astronomy, rocketry and engineering, medicine, satellite applications, policy and law, business and management, and architecture and design.
